Dear Prof. Horn:

You have been nominated for a distinct honor that is unparalleled in regard to this Century's historical records. The reference world has, for some time, been blessed with countless directories containing pertinent information on important men and women throughout the world. Needless to say, every conceivable category of biographical intrigue has been presented. Biographical reference works have dedicated their purpose to the actions, deeds, career attainments, and dedication of important individuals. Although important, and indeed necessary, it is time a reference work was dedicated to the core of these remarkable feats and achievements, to the wonderful minds that forge them.

Great Minds of the 21st Century is already one of the most popular and sought-after books among the world's greatest library collections of influential and creative minds - libraries that house collections of notable writers, doctors, scientists, philosophers, artists, entrepreneurs, and corporate, government and organizational leaders. The scope of this book will place its focus on those who have demonstrated the ability to be great leaders, thinkers, intellectuals, inventors, and the like. Great Minds of the 21st Century will be dedicated to highlighting your accomplishments and ideas, as well as your contributions to society through your unmatched intellect. Academies of higher learning will be able to use this book to recognize the prevalence of your contributions and devotion to the advancement of society and how your great mind has worked to help influence and pave the way for many individuals.

The 2013 Edition complements over 200 titles the Institute has published to date. Our reference materials have and will continue to strive as important sources of information for others like yourself as well as for libraries, schools, researchers, and the home. To honor this genuine achievement we have selected various keepsakes for you to choose from to emphasize the honor for which you have been nominated. A Medal of unequaled quality and molded only for Great Minds of the 21st Century is of special significance as is the Proclamation Plaque designed to indicate your unique selection for this volume. Keepsake hardbound copies of the volume are available to you at discounted rates prior to publication and are a wonderful addition to your home or office library.

Prof. Horn, I urge you to complete the questionnaire enclosed and return it to us by June 3, 2012 as entries in this book are limited to 1,000 individuals from around the globe. Should there be a slowdown in the transit of mail, you may return your acceptance even if your nomination date is close to, or has recently expired. Please study the available mementos of inclusion and recognition. I am sure you will be suitably impressed with their appearance and importance. I congratulate you on your nomination for this monumental reference work that has never seen a likeness. I look forward to receiving your response. Meanwhile, visit www.abiworldwide.com.

Sincerely,

C. A. Mitchell
